

FEMINISTS CENSOR CRITICISM OF THEMSELVES (1989)

"The Committee on the Status of Women at the American Association of University Professors (AAUP) maintains that criticism of feminism or Women's Studies is impermissible because it has a 'disparate impact on women faculty and chills the intellectual climate for academic women.' Within the parameters of feminism, debate may be entertained, but feminism itself is not open to question. 'Feminist education had become institutionalized in universities via Women's Studies programs,' remarks feminist writer and teacher Bell Hooks."

Dinesh D'Souza

Illiberal Education:

The Politics of Race and Sex on Campus

(The Free Press/Macmillan 1991) 212

"Report of the Committee on the Status of Women in the Academic Profession"
AAUP (May 1989), reprinted in Academe (July-August 1989) 38

Bell Hooks

Feminist Theory: From Margin to Center

(South End Press 1984) 110